Arguments End Hearing

C. G. CLAYTON

Final arguments in the county's condemnation suit against Taylor and Sons Country Store were heard Friday morning in the district courtroom and the three special commissioners took the case under advisement.

Late Tuesday afternoon the commissioners had not returned an award in the suit. The commissioners, B. R. Jones of Amarillo, Newton Crain and Walter Graham, will decide what compensation will be awarded the Taylors for the property being taken.

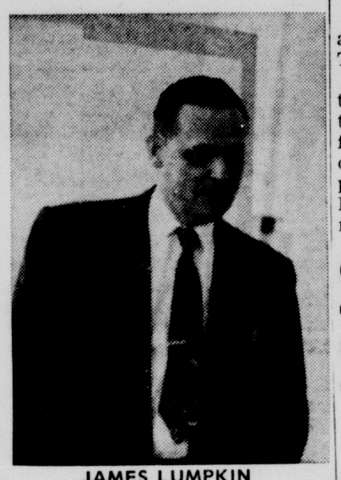

In the final argument, James G. Lumpkin, counsel for the county, told the commissioners, "There's no question that the county has the power to take this particular piece of property. The only question before you is fixing adequate compensation."

Lumpkin suggested the commissioners might decide the award by using a formula given by the state supreme court. He said that they should decide the market value of the strip of land at the time of condemnation considered as severed land.

Next they should decide the market value of the remainder of the land owned by the Taylors before any is taken away. The third step would be to fix the market value of the remainder of the land after the strip is taken.

By subtracting the amounts in the second and third steps and

College Takes Easter Holiday

A brief holiday in observance of Easter will be taken this weekend by students and faculty of West Texas State College.

The holidays begin at the close of regular classes Friday, and continue through Monday. Classes will resume at 8 a. m. Tuesday.

Buffaloes To Paw Each Other During Intrasquad Game Thursday Night

Spring football training for 48 Buffaloes will end Thursday night with an intrasquad game in Buffalo Stadium.

The Herd will be pitted against itself in a regulation game beginning at 8 p. m. The first and fourth squads will take on the second and third in a pitched battle.

Coach Frank Kimbrough said that he and his staff believe this has been possibly the best spring practice they have ever had. Eighteen of the 48 squad members will be classified as seniors next fall.

Sixteen will be juniors, nine sophomores and four freshmen, Coach Kimbrough said.

In a game last Saturday, the seniors took on the rest of the squad and won by a narrow 7-6 margin. Dave Corley, 160-pound Memphis halfback, was the outstanding runner of the day, grinding out several big gains and making the only touchdown for the seniors.

There will be no admission charge to the intrasquad game in the stadium. Coach Kimbrough has issued an invitation to all football fans in the area to see the game.

Speaks at Coffee

State Sen. A. M. Aiken Jr. of Paris, candidate for lieutenant governor, talks with Canyon citizens in the Blue Room of the college cafeteria. Sen. Aiken made a short speech at a coffee session there last week.

License Office Open Saturday

With a deadline Sunday for obtaining and displaying 1956 car license plates, the Randall County Tax Office in Canyon will remain open until 5 p. m. Saturday so the plates may be obtained.

Tax Assessor-Collector Bill Money estimated Monday afternoon that one-third of the cars in the county do not have the new plates. The new plates must be on cars by midnight Saturday.

Student Fined $100 for Damage

A West Texas State College student was fined $100 last week in the first instance of a conviction for damaging fixtures or landscaping in Conner Park.

The city issued a warning last week that anyone convicted would be fined that amount.

The case is to be appealed to county court, according to information given to City Secretary Dudley Bayne, although no papers had been filed in the clerk's office Tuesday afternoon.

The student was arrested after a chase by Officer Bill Camp. On a routine check of the park, Camp saw the student's car parked behind the swimming pool area. He drove in that direction, and the student's car drove away, cutting across a newly-seeded area of the park.

In the warning, Bayne said someone has been driving in circles on newly-seeded, freshly-watered ground and had been running over small trees and breaking them.

City Elections Held Tuesday

Voting for the offices of mayor and city commissioner will be held Tuesday in the city hall.

Only three candidates for the three offices will be named on the ballots, as only three persons filed for the offices. Those to be on the ballot are Hosea Foster, present mayor, Bob Bellah and Paul Lindsey, present city commissioners.

Sunrise Service Slated Sunday

Sunrise Easter services are set for 6:15 a. m. Sunday in the west stands of Buffalo Stadium by the Canyon Christian Youth Council.

The Rev. Curtis Strader, director of the Methodist Student Center at West Texas State, will be speaker for the early-morning services.

Following the service, a snack breakfast will be served in the Presbyterian Church.

6 Youths Placed On Probation

Six Amarillo teenagers were placed on probation Monday morning by County Judge Roy Joe Stevens on charges of theft.

The six were caught about two weeks ago by city officers while stealing wheels from cars in Canyon about 4:30 a. m.

The youths were ordered to report weekly to Joseph Findley, West Texas State College education professor, for counselling in an attempt to rehabilitate them.

Baptists Plan Revival Series

The First Baptist Church in Canyon will begin revival services April 8 with the meeting to continue through April 15.

The visiting evangelist for the meeting will be the Rev. Bruce McIver, director of the Baptist Student Union at Texas Tech. He is a native of North Carolina and attended Mars Hill College there. The Rev. McIver also attended Baylor University and was president of the BSU there.

He was state Baptist Student Union president in 1946.

The Rev. McIver was active in youth work from 1946 to 1950. He has been a pastor of a Baptist Church and also director of the BSU at Southwest Texas State Teachers College in San Marcos.

Services during the revival will be at 7 a. m. Monday through Friday and at 7:30 p. m.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Grand Jury Recommends County Make Further Plans for Building

The January term Randall County Grand Jury issued its final report following a meeting Monday and recommended that the county commissioners "continue their consideration toward giving additional facilities to other county offices."

The full report follows:

"After the three months impaneling of this Grand Jury, we wish to make the following reports and observations:

"A total of seven indictments have been returned. One case was heard on which no action was taken. One case was reviewed which was passed to this Grand Jury by the previous Grand Jury and disposed of.

"The following cases were deferred for further investigation:

"Robert Bannister - Non-support.

"Bud Hagood - Swindling by worthless check.

Luther V. Coursey - Destruction of property.

"Three cases were deferred because additional evidence needed:

"Lonnie More - Swindling by worthless check.

"James Braswell - Theft by bailee.

"Jack Dyer - Theft by bailee.

"This Grand Jury does hereby wish to acknowledge the cooperation of the Sheriff's Department, his deputies, and the District Attorney and his office in all cases coming before this session. We further wish to recognize and express our appreciation for the cooperation of all law enforcing agencies of the City of Amarillo and the County of Potter in their handling of past and present cases.

"We wish to make the following observation:

"The rapid increase of the population of the Cities of Canyon and Amarillo will soon so burden the offices of the Sheriff's department and the District Attorney with cases to be handled in this County that an increase in the personnel of each office is inevitable.

"We commend the County Commissioners for their plans to give adequate jail, jury dormitories, and tax collecting facilities. We urge that they continue their consideration toward giving additional facilities to other county offices.

"Respectfully submitted:"

The report was signed by Ralph D. Lemos as foreman of the Grand Jury and D. E. Lowes as clerk.

Mrs. Bertha Adcock returned home last week after visiting her mother, Mrs. J. T. Sykes, in Siloam Springs, Ark. Mrs. Sykes is improving from the injuries received in the car wreck a few weeks ago.

Price Is No Object, Just So It Fits

The people in the tax office swear this really happened.

A man went to the branch tax office in Amarillo to get his 1956 license plates.

In a few minutes he was back asking to exchange his four-number plates for three-number ones. "I've got a Cadillac and the bracket for the license is too small for these four-number plates," he explained.

The tax people told him that they had no three-number plates, so the man asked, "Will it be all right if I cut the last number off this set so they will fit?"

Condemnation Jury Sworn In Monday

Omer Jordan, J. L. Pate Jr. and Grady McKenzie, all of South Amarillo, were sworn in Monday morning as special condemnation commissioners by Randall County Judge Roy Joe Stevens.

The commissioners will hear testimony and decide on an award to be made to Sid Carter for land being condemned for right of way for the expressway. The hearing is scheduled for April 4.

Commission Announces Location For South Amarillo Tax Office

The Randall County Commissioners Court decided Monday in a regular meeting to accept bids for construction of the courthouse annex on May 14 at a regular meeting. The commission also announced the site for the tax office in South Amarillo which will be constructed soon. They decided to locate the building in the 3800 block of Bowie on land which already belongs to the county.

Architect L. A. Kerr told the commissioners that plans for both buildings would be ready for inspection by contractors in about two weeks. The advertisement for bids for the courthouse annex must then be advertised for three consecutive weeks, and the bids accepted at a regular meeting.

May 14 would be the first possible meeting that bids could be accepted for that building. The tax office will not have to be advertised more than two weeks, and bids may be accepted at a special meeting as well as a regular meeting.

The commission did not set a date for opening bids for the tax office.

Commissioner C. Y. Johnson said the fact that the proposed site in Amarillo is halfway between Georgia and Washington, the main north-south arteries in South Amarillo, was one of the main considerations in selecting the site. He said that the cost would also be less because the county already owns the land.

The site fronts on the west side of Bowie for almost three hundred feet. The triangular shaped piece of land is presently being used for a county barn. The commissioners propose to move all the present buildings and activities to the rear of the plot.

Plans drawn by Kerr show 34 parking spaces in front of the proposed building with other space to the rear for parking.

Johnson said that the nearest grade separation on the new expressway will be two blocks from the new building at Moss Lane.

Estimates for construction of the tax office are $35,000. The building must be financed from current funds, which County Auditor E. T. Cummings says will be available because of an increase in the county tax roll which was not budgeted.

Estimates for the courthouse annex, which will be financed by warrants to be converted into bonds, are about $150,000. The courthouse annex will include a new jail, offices for the sheriff's department and highway patrol, a courtroom for the justice of the peace and two dormitories for both male and female jurors.

The commission accepted bids for 16,000 tax receipts for 1957 and tabled the bids for further study.

Following receipt of a letter from Cummings giving an opinion

Social Calendar Response Slow

Response to the Chamber of Commerce plan to keep a calendar of coming events has been slow, Manager Roland Black said this week.

The chamber plans to keep a calendar of events, which will be published weekly in The Canyon News. By keeping the calendar in a central place, any organization will be able to find a clear date for a special event.

Black asked that organizations notify him of their regular meeting places and times, and also of any special event being planned. He will enter the information on the calendar and will be able to clear a date for organizations.

He said he would need information on any special event as soon as possible. The calendar will be published two weeks in advance when the plan gets established.

WT Choir Plans Canyon Concert in Education Building Thursday Night

Returning Thursday from its annual spring concert tour of 11 Panhandle cities, the West Texas State College A Cappella Choir will present a program at 8 p. m. in the Education Building auditorium.

Admission to the concert is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students and children. Many of the choir's numbers proclaim the Easter season.

Conducted by Dr. Houston Bright, who organized the choir 14 years ago, West Texas State's 50-voice group has become one of the really brilliant concert organizations of the Southwest.

Each year it performs in 20 or 25 regional high schools, holds extensive local concerts, television and radio shows, assists with productions of the WT Opera Workshop and Oratorio Singers.

Featured on Thursday's concert will be the excellent Hi-Fi Quartet, and a woodwind ensemble directed by David L. Kaplan. In the Hi-Fi Quartet are Bennie Gollehon, Dimmitt; Dean Kelley, James Restine and Roy Lowe, all of Amarillo. Other soloists from the choir will be presented.

The group appeared Monday and Tuesday in Panhandle, Perryton, Canadian, Pampa, Phillips and Stinnett. They will be in Amarillo, Borger and Gruver Wednesday, and will wind up the tour Thursday in Palo Duro High School (Amarillo) and Hereford.

Among the selections peculiar to the Easter season are "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" by Ingegneri, "Hodie Christus Natus Est" by Willan, "Alleluia" by Thompson, "The Angels' Song" by Tschesnekov, and "Lost in the Night" by Christiansen. Also to be presented in this group is a composition by Dr. Bright, "Te Deum Laudamus."

Other numbers include arrangements and compositions by Dr. Bright and John Butler, former WT music student, as well as many by other contemporary composers.

High School Art Exhibit in Library

An exhibition of work done by second year Canyon High School art students is being shown in the West Texas State College library.

The exhibition, on the main floor, will remain for three weeks. On the second floor, paper mache animals made by seventh grade students are being displayed.

Included in the high school exhibit are encaustic painting executed with experimental methods of using remnants of common wax crayons. Some students melted the crayons then applied the wax with a spatula while it was still warm.

Others grated the crayons and placed the colors on heavy cardboard, then melted the wax. The students made their own frames, using discarded materials.

Other exhibits are of the results of experiments with texture of ordinary materials. Some textures were created by using some common tool to change an existing surface while others were ready made, such as corrugated board.

Included are strong sculptures, utilizing design in space to give three-dimensional effects.

The paper mache figures are built with wire, paper, paste and imagination.

Claudia Neelley is art instructor at Canyon High School.

CHAPMAN MURDER STILL A MYSTERY

Although Sheriff L. S. Johnston would like to talk with a man held in the Tulsa, Okla., jail and with another who was in the vicinity of Canyon on March 14, the mysterious murder of Robert Boyd Chapman is far from being solved.

The sheriff said Tulsa police had information that a man identified as Norman Alvin Finson, 22, who was traveling with another named Freddie Clifford Bennett, 19, disappeared after giving Bennett his car about the time of the killing.

The Tulsa police said Bennett told them they had run out of money, then Finson gave him the car and disappeared. Sheriff Johnston said he would like to talk with Finson if he is found, however has placed no hold order on Bennett, who is in the Tulsa jail.

The murder of Chapman, whose mutilated body was found March 17 in the roadside park south of Canyon, is believed to have occurred early on the morning of March 14.

A filling station operator in Hereford, identified by The Hereford Brand as Bernie Kearns, serviced Chapman's car around 2 a. m. on March 14. He told officers that a 1953 Dodge sedan fitting the description of Chapman's car came into his station that morning.

He said there was another man

EDITORIAL

Views and Comments

Our friends to the north, the folks of the Amarillo Daily News, might just as well prepare to fight a running feud with Wichita Falls along with the feud with Lubbock.

Here the other morning, the Amarillo newspaper had a front page picture and editorial suggesting that a new slogan for the city might be "The crossroads of the hemisphere." The picture showed a highway sign with arrows pointing all over the place and signs for four different highways.

Just the day before I saw a picture of a highway sign in Wichita Falls, printed in The Shamrock magazine. The sign had arrows pointing every which way, and had signs for five different highways. The magazine was claiming that Wichita Falls is the crossroads of a much smaller area than was claimed by the Amarillo paper. The magazine suggested that Wichita Falls is the "Crossroads of North Texas."

Therein lies the bone of contention, and that raises another question. If Wichita Falls, with five highways, is the crossroads of only North Texas, and Amarillo, with four highways, is the crossroads of the hemisphere, what does that make Highway 287 which runs through Wichita Falls and Amarillo?

I wonder where the expression "grass roots" sprang from. Politicians use the term with abandon, flinging it far and wide. We newspaper people use it all the time, when we ask for opinions of the people. We like to say we are taking a "grass roots poll."

We all know what someone means when he uses the phrase, but I wonder who used it first and how it came to be so widely accepted.

"Marty" won the Academy Award for the best movie of 1955. Funny, isn't it. That movie was in black and white, and used the old size screen. There weren't any startling, unusual special effects. The sound didn't jump out at you from all sides of the theater.

It didn't have any effect of three or six dimensions. The plot didn't have gobs of filth in it, and the lines spoken by the actors weren't filled with double meanings. None of the actors were handsome lovers, and the actresses weren't mis-shapen sex machines. You knew soon after the movie started what the outcome would be.

The only things that "Marty" relied upon were a good, well-written story, superb camera work and acting of the finest kind. Probably the only memorable dialogue in the whole movie is the series that runs: "What do you feel like doing tonight?" "I don't know. What do you feel like doing?" "Oh, I don't know. What do you feel like doing?"

It's odd, or maybe my memory is playing tricks on me, but it seems like the best movies I've seen since the advent of the super-super-super type of picture have been simple ones filmed in black and white with good stories and good acting.

If you'd like a good example of one of the possible causes of juvenile delinquency, take a good listen someday to recently and currently-popular "rock and roll" songs. Take a good look on television at some of the currently-popular singers.

The songs themselves have no tune, they're just racket. The rhythm behind the racket is nothing but a series of regular beats. The songs are designed to stir the emotions, and not those emotions usually attributed to the higher and finer things.

The words to the songs aren't suggestive, no siree. They come right out and say things that aren't usually said in polite society, nor indeed, in society at all.

Those songs are aimed directly at teen-agers. They have titles like "The Answer to a Teenage Prayer," "Dungaree Doll," and "Baby Let's Play House." Couple the emotion-stirring design, the forthright words and the regular beat and you have a dangerous situation. A teenager, who is at the age when curiosity about the opposite sex is at its peak, listening to these songs can't help but get ideas that are serious in their implications.

Take a look at Elvis Presley the next time he's on your television set. The movements he makes while chanting (you can't call that singing) are ludicrous. They provoke laughter in adults. Look closer, though, and see if those movements don't correspond pretty well to the "bumps and grinds" of burlesque queens.

A popular fad right now is the disc jockey club sponsored by radio stations. KGNC, in Amarillo, has one called "The 710-Teen DJ Club" that can be heard each weeknight at 7:30 p. m. There is even a nationwide one called "The National Radio Fan Club." It's heard every Friday night on the same station.

Listening to either program might be a good chance for parents to hear the type of "music" currently favored by their children. I'll guarantee you it's nothing like some of the songs you liked when you were that age. It doesn't even faintly resemble the jazz that is reputed by some to be immoral and vulgar.

The current run of popular songs is cacophony. The theme runs to "love," and especially to "love" that has been lost. They impute that the singer and a girl (or boy) have been in "love" and have done things together, then one or the other has gone off to do the same things with someone else.

Take Presley's "Baby Let's Play House," for instance. Almost all he chants is "Come back, Baby, Come back," and "Come back Baby, I wanna play house with you." He says something about how "Baby" can go off to college and "drive a pink Cadillac," but she's got to come back and "play house" with him.

He chants, "Come on back to me, little girl, so we can play some house." At the end, Presley says, "I'd rather see you dead, little girl, than be with another man."

In another, titled "I Was the One," Presley chants that he was the one who taught the girl in question all the arts of erotic love and now she's off with someone else using those arts. He says it's breaking his heart.

I picked Presley because his tuneless chant, which is almost impossible to understand at times, is the one which grates worst on my nerves. But there are plenty more.

I may be wrong about the whole thing, but I believe that the only way that someone who listens regularly to the current run of popular "music" will ever learn to enjoy real music is through aversion. One can get so fed up with "rock and roll" that a taste of music would be like the taste of milk and honey to a thirsting, starving man.

A man who wanted to buy a riding horse for his wife went out to the stables and tried one out. Noticing that the horse was quite spirited he asked the owner, "Do you think a woman could handle this horse?"

"Well," replied the owner, "let's put it this way. A woman could handle that horse all right, but I'd hate to be the husband of the woman who could do it."

Editor Stirs Up Farm Bureau Prexy; Gets Letter Denying Policy Switch

In the March 9 issue of The Ralls Banner, Editor Ernest Joiner took a pot shot at J. Walter Hammond, president of the Texas Farm Bureau. Hammond answered Joiner by letter, and both the column notes about Hammond and the answering letter follow.

THE COLUMN

This concerns the Farm Bureau and its many hundreds of members in this area. It concerns what the FB, state and national, is doing to its members on the South Plains. This area is dedicated to rigid price supports at 90% of parity, or better. At the Crosby County Farm Bureau convention last year a resolution was adopted and sent to the state convention urging return to rigid, 90% parity for cotton and other farm products. This resolution was adopted at the state convention. Such being the case, the president of the Texas Farm Bureau was morally, if not legally, bound to represent this majority view of its members in legislative matters where his views might be sought. How do FB members in this area feel now that State FB President J. Walter Hammond has testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee that the farmers favor and need the flexible price support system of Secretary of Agriculture Benson and President Eisenhower? Perhaps these South Plains members have not been informed of their state president's "switch" in Washington, but we have the word of J. M. Rankin, who was there, that Hammond testified before the committee in behalf of flexible price supports, and against the overwhelming majority of FB members in Texas who are on record as opposing the flexible scale plan. We are hard pressed to calculate the advantages of paying dues to an organization that uses the money to violate its agreement with its members. Of course, the FB is not exactly a farmer organization, as is the Farmers Union. Railroads, banks, and nearly every type of business is solicited into FB membership to the extent that it can hardly be called a true farmer group. As far as South Plains farmers go, the FB's policies mean that farmers are paying $10 a year for the privilege of having an organized group cut their collective throats in Washington. Local farmers have resisted FB membership on such grounds. The FB reply is that the way to get a voice in Washington is to get so many members Texas farmers can out-vote the North. Few farmers fall for this piece of fantasy. But they do have a right to expect that as far as Texas farmers are concerned, state FB officials should reflect the policies adopted in convention by farmers from all over the state. We do not pretend to know which is better for the country and for farmers, sliding scales or rigid supports. But when Texas farmers demand rigid supports they shouldn't be double-crossed by their hired hand when he testifies in Washington. We have the official publication of the Texas Farm Bureau for March before us. Across the masthead are these words: "Full Parity for All Farm and Ranch Products." How now, Mr. Hammond?

THE LETTER

Dear Sir:

A copy of the March 9 issue of The Ralls Banner, which contains a column written by you, has just come into my possession. In your column, you state that I have testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee in Washington in favor of flexible price supports.

This is an inexcusable misstatement of facts.

Had you bothered to check the Senate Committee records, which are public property, you would have known that I did not testify as you so stated in your column.

You are betraying the public's trust in the newspaper profession when you print misstatements in your paper. Because of the power of the printed word you, as an editor, are obligated to publish the truth.

I noticed also in the March 9 issue of your paper a letter to the editor from the chief of police of Tulia who apparently was concerned about the way you handled the facts in a news story you had published in a previous issue. He said: "It is my opinion that you, as a newspaper man, should arm yourself with more factual information before attacking any individual or group on hearsay. I feel that you owe it to yourself and to your readers, to say nothing of the persons accused, to ascertain the creditability of any information furnished you."

Apparently you have an aversion to checking for facts when you write an article or editorial. What confounded me was your answering comment on his letter. You said: "We simply question the honest and fearless fight for law enforcement when convictions are made upon presumption rather than fact."

If you really believe in that principle, you would have checked the records in Washington before falsely stating that I testified in favor of flexible price supports before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The real tragedy of your prevarication is that you have apparently fallen into the hands of those who would like to set farmer against farmer. This is the old technique of "divide and conquer." However, agriculture is in a disastrous plight today and farmers and ranchmen cannot afford the luxury of division. Farmers must stick together if they want to gain their fair share of the national income. Regardless of what farm organization they belong to, it is also important for farmers to think for themselves, using facts, instead of blindly following some rabble-rouser whose chief concern is increased circulation instead of increased farm income.

I sincerely hope that you have not allowed yourself to become a tool of those who would divide and conquer agriculture.

I would appreciate your publishing this letter in your paper as I feel that your readers are entitled to know the truth.

Sincerely,
J. Walter Hammond
President

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Farm Legislation

The Senate is drawing close to a final vote on the controversial farm bill. By the time this letter reaches you, this highly important legislation will be in a Conference Committee made up of Members representing the House Agriculture Committee and the Senate Agriculture Committee.

This committee will try to work out the differences between the House of Representatives and the Senate and to work out a bill acceptable to both Houses of the Congress. It will be remembered that the House last year passed the bill fixing mandatory price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

The Senate failed to act last year on the measure prior to adjournment. The House bill is still before the Senate, but the Senate has written a new bill into which has been injected a number of items.

If this bill passes the Senate, which is expected, the chances are that it will never be debated in the House of Representatives. The reason being, that the Senate will substitute its farm bill for the wording in the House farm bill and then pass the bill as a House measure.

This means that the bill will then be taken to a Conference Committee and not brought back to the House for further debate. The only time that the House will get to act on such a measure again will be to vote for or against accepting the report of the Conference Committee.

The Senate has already knocked out rigid 90 per cent supports. As we predicted, the 90 per cent support lost because a Republican block was joined by several Southern Senators to whom Benson had made a special appeal.

I respect the sincerity of the Senators in what they have done, but I question their judgment. The farm problem is a nation wide problem and the attempt to settle the local matters and problems with a disregard for the rest of the farm economy must operate to divide the farm forces.

We hope that this Administration is not pursuing the doctrine of "divide and conquer" in its attempt to cope with the farm matter.

As I have repeatedly stated in the past, the family-size farm is one of the pillars upon which this country has been built to its present greatness. If we want to destroy our way of life, the greatest blow that can be struck against it would be the destruction of the family farm unit.

It is in this source that democracy must find two of its essential roots, independence and freedom. These roots can be as completely destroyed by economic means as by physical force.

This must not be allowed to happen.

Highway Legislation

The battle lines on highway legislation are fast shaping up. The highway explosive tax matters in last year's bill have been measurably watered down by the Ways and Means Committee's recommendations.

Plenty will be said, however, with regard to the present ones when this bill reaches the floor. Other items of apparent hot debate seem to have been cooled down some.

The issue that is coming to the front fast as one of the leading controversies is the issue of whether or not the taxpayers should pay all of the expenses to relocate the facilities of utility companies along present highway rights of way.

Congressman Brady Gentry, of Tyler, Texas, a former Texas Highway Commissioner and County Judge, has been waging a running and effective fight against the use of tax monies to pay utility companies for relocating their facilities.

One of his major weapons is the argument that the present rights of way have been used free of charge by the utility companies and that these companies have provisions in their contracts agreeing to relocate these facilities without cost to the public.

The utility companies claim that if the taxpayers are not required to pay for relocation costs, then they (the utility companies) will simply pass on the cost of this relocation to their customers.

You can see that there is plenty of fuel here for a good sized bonfire.

Like the school aid and other pieces of legislation here, you can expect many attempts to put rider type legislation on the highway bill. This is one means of helping the trend towards total centralization of government and regimentation of individuals.

Have you ever thought how fast centralization and regimentation are being accomplished? When most of you my age were boys and girls you didn't have to have a license for every turn of your daily life.

About the only licenses we knew of at that time were dog licenses and these only applied to city dogs. Country dogs didn't need them as long as they came to town for strictly social purposes.

I guess it can properly be said that we are now leading a dog's life, at least in so far as licensing is concerned.

Debeaking Popular Among Poultrymen

COLLEGE STATION—Buying debeaked chicks for broiler production has become an increasingly popular practice among poultrymen, says Ben Wormeli, extension poultry husbandman.

Chief advantages of debeaking are prevention of feather picking and cannibalism among chickens and turkeys. Live market grade of debeaked chicks is significantly better due to more complete feathering, and experimental evidence indicated that debeaked chicks tend to produce a pound of gain for less feed than non-debeaked birds.

Day old chicks are usually debeaked by the block method, searing off one-third both top and bottom beak. Debeaking of adult birds consists of removing one-third of the upper beak with a knife or a hot electric blade which carterizes the area.

When debeaking is correctly done, the only real discomfort is due to extra handling, says Wormeli. The outer beak is the same type of material as horn and hoof, and careful removal does not produce pain. If laying hens are carefully handled during debeaking, egg production will not be lowered.

Debeaked birds tend to grow to more uniform size, feather more uniformly, be less nervous, and have better eating habits. It is reported that hatcheries charge 25 cents for debeaking 100 head, and where birds are raised in close quarters it would seem to be a good preventitive investment for the commercial poultryman.

Buy, Build, Live in Canyon!

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

I remember when I was a boy in Memphis, Tenn., a revival conducted by the Rev. Burke Culpepper in a tent in a residential section. He was a heavy-set man with a shock of iron-gray hair, an energetic style of speaking and a voice of power. (This was of course years before public address systems came into use). I can see him now in the middle of a hot summer, a handkerchief clutched in his hand, alternately using the handkerchief to gesticulate and to mop his brow.

He attacked law enforcement, or rather, lack of enforcement, of certain laws. He had a sense of humor. On one occasion, he was describing vice conditions. He said, "You go down to one of these places and buy a bottle of beer." (Memphis was supposed to have prohibition.) "You pay 25 cents for a bottle of beer," he continued. (A quarter was a right sizeable amount in those days when a laborer might get only $2 for 10 hours' work.) "A quarter—that's the price, isn't it?" the preacher went on. A man seated on the platform nodded his head and said, "That's right." The evangelist replied, "Thank you" and the man who had answered turned red while the congregation roared.

Brother Culpepper stirred up so much interest that he set in motion a chain of events which resulted in the removal of several men from public office and the tightening up of law enforcement.

The power of one man, armed with eloquence, zeal, courage and the Gospel, is tremendous.

Despite the findings of a group of doctors who studied thousands of smokers and non-smokers of cigarets as to lung cancer, a doctor has challenged the findings on the ground of insufficient study. A long time ago, Henry George, the great economist, said that an "expert" could be found to dispute the correctness of the multiplication table if it was to the financial advantage of some group to disprove the multiplication table.

A member of the press gallery, after hearing the first speech of a new member of the British Parliament, advised him that speaking was not in his line. But Richard Brinsley Sheridan was not dissuaded and became perhaps the greatest speaker that Parliament has ever known.

IGNORANT

Little Willie after an absence of two days, arrived back at school.

"Didn't your mother write a note?" asked his teacher.

"Yes, ma'am, but I forgot to bring it," replied Willie.

"Well, young man," went on the teacher, "why were you away?"

"I don't know, I didn't read the note."

The only way to get a raise with some companies is to take a ride on the elevator.

LAZY

"Jones always strikes me as an indolent sort of chap."

"Indolent?" Why that fellow is so lazy he always runs his automobile over a bump to knock the ashes off his cigar."

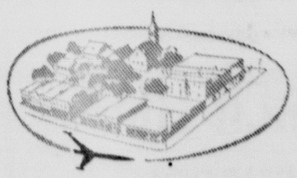

Of course you are proud of your home and its furnishings. However, is it covered with enough fire insurance? If you haven't checked your present policies recently, it would be wise to do so.

SEE YOUR REDDY KILOWATT APPLIANCE DEALER

"My big interest in owning a clothes dryer is the time that I can save. I make all the pies for our cafe, and spend several hours a day there, and I have four children, and must wash every day. Now that I have my dryer it takes fewer clothes for my children, and less time to launder them."

"I choose many of the materials that need no ironing for our clothes, especially the dresses for my little girl. I haven't time to iron the many ruffled dresses she wears every week. With the no-iron materials, her dresses are ready to wear when they come out of the clothes dryer. MY YOUNGEST SON WILL SOON BE TWO, AND I HAVE NEVER HAD TO IRON ANY OF HIS CLOTHES."

"Sandy says our towels are as soft as her kitten. And she is so right, because my towels are so fluffy, soft and clean smelling after being dried in my electric clothes dryer."

See your Reddy Kilowatt Appliance Dealer, and see for yourself that you, too, can enjoy all the advantages of modern clothes drying. Of course, it's electric.

Modern Age Commuter

Charles Wright, West Texas sophomore, can eat breakfast at home, attend a full college class schedule and be back at home in Panhandle for lunch.

The 25-year-old ex-Marie pilot accomplishes the feat through the help of his two-passenger Taylorcraft airplane, making him one of the most unusual commuting college students in the country.

"It would be almost impossible to commute by car from Panhandle," said Wright, "and the plane enables me to continue farming and college at the same time."

Wright and his uncle, C. D. Chenoweth, farm 1280 acres five miles southwest of Panhandle and that is a full time job. However, Wright, who was discharged from the Marines in 1955 after flying Panther jets for three years, is just as determined to get his degree in agriculture from West Texas.

"I can make it from Panhandle to Canyon in about 35 minutes and the return trip takes only 25 minutes, depending on the wind."

Wright uses a pasture northeast of the campus for a landing strip, leaving him only a five-minute walk to the Administration Building. At home, he utilizes a similar pasture for an "airport."

The ex-Panhandle High School student figures his plane travel is more economical than by auto.

"Five gallons of gas will complete the round trip and that figures out to about $1.50 per day."

Mrs. Frank Brooks Shower Honoree

Mrs. Frank Brooks was honored with a pink and blue shower in the home of Mrs. Leslie Neal. Mrs. Floy O'Neall was co-hostess.

Tiny storks and spring flowers were used as decorations throughout the entertaining rooms. Tiny blue diapers with mints were used as favors. Pink and blue cakes and ice cream were served to the guests.

Approximately 35 guests called or sent gifts.

A&M Slates "Cage Clinic"

COLLEGE STATION—The laying cage system of commercial egg production has grown like "Jack's beanstalk" of fairy tale fame since 1953 in Texas.

At the end of 1953, only 272,000 hens were in cages but by December 1955, the number stood at more than 1,243,000 and they were producing approximately 10 per cent of the state's market eggs.

Because of the statewide interest expressed by individuals and groups, a cage clinic has been scheduled for A. & M.'s Memorial Student Center on March 28.

Problems relating to the system will be discussed in the one-day clinic and will include marketing, basic requirements of hens for caged egg production, pullet rearing, vaccinating, feeding replacement pullets, cage houses for Texas, feeding the producing hens, records, fly and parasite control, egg care, use of lights and a question and answer period.

All speakers, except Lynn B. Sanborn, farm adviser (county agent) of Los Angeles county, Calif., and Bob Mayfield, owner of Feather Crest Farms of Bryan, will be Texas A. & M. College System personnel.

George P. McCarthy, executive vice president, Universal Mills, Fort Worth, will chair the morning session which begins at 9:30 a. m. and Dr. J. H. Quisenberry, head, Poultry Department, Texas A. & M. College System, the afternoon session.

Extension Poultry Husbandman Ben Wormeli says cage producers and those interested in picking up the latest information on this system of egg production are especially urged to be present. He expects a large attendance for the meeting.

TELEPHONE TALK

Telephone Growth Boosts Prosperity

Here are some facts about what's behind your telephone, what it takes to meet the needs of people all over Texas for telephone service.

Last year Southwestern Bell spent $91 million on new construction and $150 million for day-to-day expenses in Texas. In one way or another, nearly everyone in Texas benefited from this expenditure to keep your service going – and growing.

One result, we hope, was the best telephone service you've ever enjoyed. Another result, we are sure, was a healthy boost to the prosperity of the entire state.

For example, $104 million (one of the state's largest business payrolls) went into the pockets of 26,000 Texans who work for the telephone company. And most of this was spent in communities like ours for all the many goods and services which local merchants and businessmen provide.

How Others Benefited From Telephone Activity

Another $1,500,000 went to Texas service stations and garages to help keep the company's fleet of 3,529 trucks and automobiles rolling. This included the cost of 2,919,880 gallons of gasoline, as well as tires, accessories, repair parts and $500,000 in direct labor costs.

Three hundred twenty-six Texas automobile dealers profited from the sale of 589 new trucks and 110 new automobiles to the company.

Those in the building industry were paid $7,500,000 for their work on new buildings, additions, and major improvements. New building activity alone involved 254 different contractors directly and provided enough work to keep 4,500 skilled carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, electricians, and other craftsmen busy full time for a year.

In addition, we paid $4,665,000 to independent contractors for jobs ranging from tree trimming to laying underground cable conduit.

Another $2,618,000 went to local suppliers of office furniture and fixtures, printing, office supplies, and the hundreds of sundry items to carry on our business. And $840,000 additional went to local people and firms outside the company for building maintenance and odd jobs, ranging from window washing to trash handling.

'56 Construction to Break All Records

This year's construction program will add up to $106 million, the largest in our history.

Many long months of planning and engineering have gone into this 1956 program. It is based on the company's faith that the Texas communities we serve will continue to grow and prosper – and on our ability to attract more, new investment dollars from outside the business.

To meet your needs for more and more telephone service, we must depend on finding people in all parts of the country who are willing to invest their savings in our business.

So, you see, one of the very important factors of good telephone service is the faith of investors that their savings can earn a safe and reasonable return in the telephone business. Another is the public's faith in us as one of the state's most necessary citizens, an important contribution to continuing prosperity.

State DHIA In 50th Year

COLLEGE STATION—Herd records are basic to sound dairying. No dairyman, says R. E. Burleson, extension dairy husbandman, can breed, feed or manage a profitable herd of dairy cows year-in and year-out without herd records.

Right now records are especially important because of the cost-price squeeze for they permit dairymen to cut corners and eliminate inefficiencies in the business.

Burleson says most dairymen are familiar with the three methods used to obtain herd records. He lists them as DHIA, the official testing program for registered cows and private records which are kept by the dairyman.

He believes DHIA records are preferred where dairymen have an opportunity to participate in a dairy herd improvement association program.

This program is now in its 50th year and has proved to be an effective tool and source of information for managing the dairy herd.

During the past two years DHIA's have been organized in Brazos, Burleson, Nacogdoches, Kaufman and Van Zandt counties. The Brazos Association began operating on March 1.

Other associations have grown during this same period to the extent of adding an additional tester to take care of the increasing numbers of herds and cows.

The Nacogdoches Association, started in the spring of 1955, now has 17 herds and 1,100 cows on test and is working to add a second supervisor. The Erath County Association grew from 14 herds in 1955 to 27 herds in February and at that time had six herds on the waiting list and four others ready to come in.

A second supervisor has been hired by this group. The original Gulf Coast DHIA has grown into two associations, the Harris County and Brazoria-Galveston DHIA.

Not all dairymen, says the specialist, have an opportunity to enroll their herds in a DHIA but each keep private records on the herd.

While butterfat tests probably cannot be made where private records are kept, Burleson says milk records alone can work for the dairyman when applied to the basic principles of dairying such as feeding, breeding and management.

WHAT A LIFE!

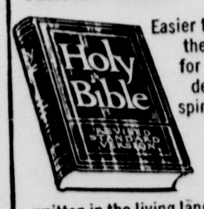

Mother had her numerous offspring out shopping, and as they waited for a bus she began to tell them a story to keep the peace.

"One time I was in the middle of the jungle," she said warily, "and I looked up to see a tiger only a few feet away. I tried to run, but with a bound it was on me and I was struck down dead."

"But it couldn't have. You're still living," protested several of the children.

A weary glance swept the family as mother closed her eyes and replied, "You call this living?"

State Capitol NEWS

Texas Press Association

A long battle for interposition action begins in Texas this week. At its Tuesday meeting in Houston the State Democratic Executive Committee will answer Gov. Allan Shivers' proposal to place the interposition question on the primary ballot.

Reports also are to be made by the party's legal subcommittee and the Texas Committee on School Segregation. Both have been studying the suggested interposition referendum.

Governor Shivers is expected to ask voters to join his crusade against federal encroachment by giving the legislature a mandate for interposition. He will address the committee at a night meeting to which all Democrats from the Houston area are invited.

Later, Shivers will visit various parts of the nation. He will talk to leaders, without regard to party, and make speeches to gain nation-wide support for the interposition movement.

Also on the executive committee's agenda will be the laying of groundwork for the upcoming convention battles. Liberal-loyalists have indicated clearly that they intend to fight the conservative party leadership at precinct, county and state meetings.

Favorite Son Approved

Speaker Sam Rayburn's proposal that Texas Democratic convention delegates be chosen who will support Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson as the favorite son candidate for presidential nomination, won general approval.

Rayburn's suggestion that Johnson be made chairman of the delegation was endorsed by liberals, but brought no reply from the conservatives.

Texas GOP Plans Strategy

Texas Republicans will bypass the holding of primaries this year. They will concentrate on the general election.

At their Austin meeting the State Executive Committee agreed 1) to nominate by convention; 2) to hold precinct conventions May 5, county conventions May 8 and the state convention May 22 in Houston; and 3) to focus efforts on the re-election in November of President Eisenhower and Dallas Congressman Bruce Alger, Texas' only Republican congressman.

Texas' delegation to the national GOP convention is expected to be solidly pro-Eisenhower, but the touchy question of a vice presidential nominee has been carefully avoided.

Vaccine Stretching Debated

Public health officials are in disagreement over a proposal to delay third polio shots in order to extend the dwindling vaccine supply to more people.

A two-shot plan was endorsed by the Public Health Service in Washington. Such a plan would stretch the still-short supply of vaccine to cover 25 to 30 million persons, officials said.

Dr. Henry A. Holle, Texas health commissioner, turned thumbs down. He said the difference between two shots and three "could be the difference between having paralytic polio and not having it."

Texas' supply is almost exhausted. However, a rush order of 150,000 cubic centimeters of the vaccine is expected to arrive before the end of the month. One cubic centimeter is sufficient for one inoculation.

Meanwhile 11 new cases of polio are reported in Texas, bringing the year's total to date to 121.

FFA Boys Active

More than 38,000 boys now are enrolled in FFA chapters in Texas high schools. So reports Lewis B. Taylor, executive secretary of the Texas Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association.

Biggest FFA chapter is at Burbank High School in San Antonio, where there are 186 members.

National awards have been won by chapters in Clifton and Whitney. Clifton boys won the FFA national gold emblem rating six times in a row. Five FFA boys from Whitney won the American Farmer Degree the same year.

Short Snorts

April 5 is the opening date for the old French legation in Austin. Dignitaries of the Sons and daughters of the Republic, the State and the University, will attend opening day ceremonies.

Only about half of Texas' motorists have obtained auto inspection stickers so far this year. Over 150,000 cars a week will have to be checked between now and the April 15 deadline.

George C. Menzies died from rabies, last January, while working on an experiment with bats. He left a wife and four children. Austin friends of the former State Health Department scientist have started an educational fund for the children. Spearheading the drive is W. N. Colson. So far less than $3,000 has been collected. More money is needed. Contributions may be sent to Colson at Box 691, Austin.

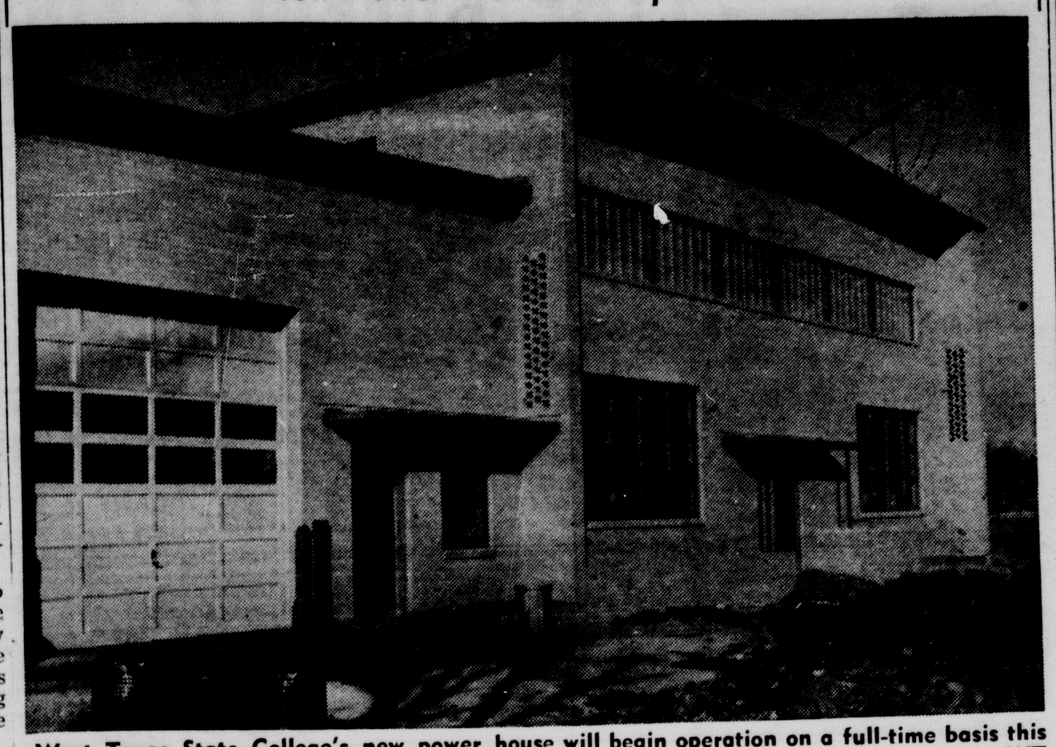

Six insurance companies owned by W. Lee O'Daniel and his family, have fewer policies in effect than the new law requires for continued operation. So reports the insurance commission. Included are the W. Lee O'Daniel Life Insurance Co. and five others, of which O'Daniel's son, Pat, is president.

Another insurance company is out of business. But without repercussions or financial loss. Home Life and Accident Insurance Co. of Dallas voluntarily surrendered its license and asked that a court-appointed receiver be named. Frank Cain, chairman of the board, said that all policyholders and creditors would be paid in full and stockholders would receive more than their original investments.

April oil allowables have been cut by 64,159 barrels daily by the Texas Railroad Commission. Reduction to 3,356,857 barrels was affected by allowing one less producing day than in March.

Most recent atomic blast to be set off within the Soviet Union was recently reported by Norway's defense ministry. Her experts, charting drift of atomic fallout, say that the explosion occurred in Siberia late in January or early in February.

New Power House in Operation

West Texas State College's new power house will begin operation on a full-time basis this week, replacing a 40-year-old structure which has supplied heat for the campus since WT was a one-building college. Three huge boilers will be adequate for heating campus buildings still in the planning stage.

Disposal Pit Aid To Farm Sanitation

COLLEGE STATION—A poultry disposal pit is not expensive; is a real labor saver and offers a simple solution to the problem of disposing of dead birds on the poultry farm.

Too, says Ben Wormeli, extension poultry husbandman, a properly constructed poultry pit can be a mighty important part of the farm's sanitation program.

Locate the pit at least 100 feet downhill from the water supply. It should be close to the poultry house to encourage quick disposal. Wormeli recommends a pit containing 100 cubic feet of space for a 1,000-bird laying flock.

Such a pit will also take care of the birds normally lost from the growing or replacement pullet flock. This size pit should also be sufficient for a 10,000-bird broiler plant.

Wormeli suggests the pit be made from four and a half to five feet wide, six feet deep and long enough to meet the needs of the poultry flock. He says a pit 4½'x6'x5' will take care of the normal mortality of 1,000 laying hens and the replacement pullet flock.

To prevent cave-ins, second-hand lumber, cement blocks or bricks can be used to line the walls of the pit. Cover the top with two layers of two-inch boards, heavy sheet steel or reinforced concrete.

The opening in the center of the top can be fitted with an old milk can or garbage can with the bottom knocked out or a 12 inch tile. A tightly fitted lid on the opening is a must.

The cover of the pit should be banked with soil up to the level of the opening to provide good drainage away from the pit.

The usefulness of a disposal pit makes it an important part of a sanitation program for maintaining a healthy poultry flock and preventing the spread of diseases.

Last but not least, says the specialist, the poultryman who uses a disposal pit enjoys a firm conviction that dead birds from his flock are not the source of disease outbreaks.

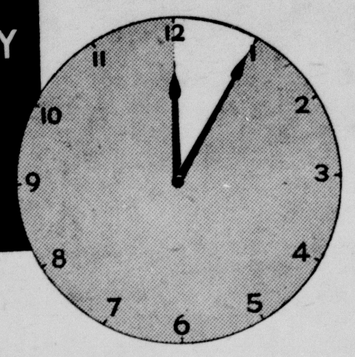

MODERN MARY

At the supper table one night on the farm, the hired man was telling about a breeder who was developing a strain of sheep for speed. "He tells me," the hired man said, "that he's got lambs now that can run 40 miles an hour."

"But why does he want lambs that can run 40 miles an hour?" asked the bright young girl.

"To keep up with Mary," he replied.

Students Start WT Art Gallery

A gallery for the artists of West Texas State College and the Panhandle region is in the planning stage by members of Kappa Pi, national art honorary fraternity.

To be built wholly through donations, the structure will be started about the middle of April, according to Dr. Emilio Caballero, head of the WT art department, and one of the club's sponsors. A number of contributions to the building fund have already been made.

A sketch of the proposed gallery, to be of rustic design, has been made by Miss Isabel Robinson, associate professor of art, and blueprints have been prepared.

The gallery will be located just east of the WT campus on the Palo Duro State Park highway. Fraternity members and Virgil Henson, WT business manager, have tentatively located the building site on the college farm adjacent to the highway.

"Purpose of the building is to give the people of this region a permanent gallery for exhibition by area and student artists," Dr. Caballero said. "It should assist greatly in encouraging and fostering the growth of West Texas and Panhandle art."

Fraternity members are spending weekends salvaging materials from an old rock building on the farm near the Amarillo highway. The building, once occupied by boys working on the farm, will have to be removed for Expressway right-of-way. Much of the lumber will be salvaged for the gallery.

The proposed gallery will be 24 by 40 feet, containing one large exhibition room and storage facilities.

Besides student art and crafts and regional works, the fraternity plans to secure traveling exhibits, such as the famed Stables Art Gallery's collections of Taos art.

Business manager for the club's building fund is Jimmie Jackson, senior from Pampa.

in the car who identified himself as a hitchhiker in conversation. Kearns said the hitchhiker was "talking about how lucky he was to get a ride 'straight through'," according to the Hereford newspaper.

Sheriff Johnston said another man in Shamrock saw the car with one man in it around 7 a. m. the same morning. The sheriff theorizes that the murder occurred somewhere between Hereford and Canyon, and the body was thrown out after reaching here.

Deputies searched both sides of the highway from Canyon to Hereford in an effort to find any signs of a struggle, but were unable to discover any.

Sheriff Johnston said if the Chapman car is found outside the state the FBI will be asked to enter the case and aid in the search for the murderer. Until evidence is found that the murderer might have crossed state lines, the FBI cannot enter the case.

Answering a question as to where the murderer might be tried if he is found, Criminal Dist. Atty. A. W. Lair said the law places the emphasis on where the murder occurred.

If the wounds resulting in death were inflicted inside the state, the trial could be held in the county where the wounds were inflicted, in the county where death occurred or in the county where the body was found, Lair said.

If the wounds were inflicted outside the state, the trial would be held in that state, regardless of where Chapman died or where the body was found.

adding any difference to the first step, the commissioners would arrive at the amount to be paid, "just and adequate compensation," Lumpkin said.

"It is our contention that the benefits (of the expressway) practically offset any damage to the land," he said.

C. G. Clayton, counsel for the Taylors, said that "figures introduced in evidence show that just moving all the buildings back would be more than we claim the Taylors are damaged." He cited the following figures: $187,835 appraised damage by Joseph A. Gallagher Sr., Los Angeles appraiser; $182,968 appraised damage by Col. T. H. McDonald, Amarillo appraiser; and $188,418.84 estimates for moving the buildings.

Lanham Nelson and Chief Youngblood, right of way agents for the county, appraised the damage to Taylors at $42,919.50.

In his summation, Clayton told the commissioners that Taylor and Sons did not plan to rebuild the grocery in the present location. He said they believed that the site would be worthless for a grocery operation after the expressway is built.

The special commissioners began study of the evidence submitted in a 7-day hearing after making a physical inspection of the Taylor property Friday afternoon. They have given no indication as to when they might announce a decision.

of the attorney general that the commissioners' salaries were not set accurately at the beginning of this year, the commissioners ordered County Treasurer Ruth Hill to issue them expense checks for $50, which they normally get, and hold their pay checks until the matter is straightened out.

The commissioners had set their salaries at the first of the year and had added $100 a month for expenses, $50 for car expense and $50 for expense as road overseers. Upon advice from Cummings, they changed their salaries to include only $50 for car expense and adding the $50 as road overseers to their regular salaries.

The opinion Cummings submitted said the commissioners could not draw the $50 for road overseers because they were not drawing it before Sept. 6, 1955.

The commissioners also approved payments for two pieces of land along the expressway. Those approved were to C. F. Crutchfield and to T. M. Blume.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boston of Amarillo and Mrs. Murray Boston of Canyon spent the weekend in Las Vegas, N. M., visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Patke and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Patke and daughter attended the funeral in Marlin Monday.

Mr. Patke is survived by his wife, five sons and five daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie left Saturday for Houston to be with their daughter, Helen, who will undergo an operation Monday at Shrine Hospital.

● Refugees

On Monday, Mrs. Thelma Morgan of Amarillo mailed assurances for four refugees to Church World service—one married couple and two single women to work in the Morgan Convalescent Homes in Amarillo and in Borger.

Before refugees come people should prepare themselves to be patient. Remember the background of physical and emotional suffering that have made them refugees. They have been prepared by a thorough examination and are declared in sound health before they are considered for resettlement.

Final health checks are made just before embarkation. However, frequently refugees exhibit symptoms of illness soon after arrival. Such symptoms may be caused by too much food, excitement, uncertainty, fear, tension, nervousness on account of sordid memories.

They will appreciate your "goodness" in providing for them a way out, but may be shy about showing it openly.

—Mary Moss Richardson

Mr. and Mrs. Jozach Byrd left Tuesday for a ten-day visit in New Orleans.

CUTTING REMARK

Around the Town . .

By DOVIE CHERRY

In last week's AROUND THE TOWN, the leading question was, where is the oldest house in town? That was answered by Mrs. Lillie Foster who said her home at 511 16th St. was the oldest being built, as close as she could approximate, in 1895.

But it seems that the column has had a lot of old timers scratching their heads. They've been wondering if the Foster house is actually the oldest house in town and if the house was built in 1895. (That's the oldest standing house; those torn down don't count.)

After a call from Mrs. J. D. McElroy who said she arrived in Canyon in 1894, and that the Foster house was standing even then, I decided to call Mrs. B. C. Taylor Sr., who arrived in Canyon in 1889. Mrs. McElroy and a lot of other old timers said, "Mrs. Taylor will know."

So according to Mrs. Taylor, the Foster house, which was built by her father, is actually the oldest standing house in town and she believes it was built in 1890. Incidentally Mrs. Taylor, who was formerly Dollie Thompson, was married in the Foster house 57 years ago this June.

While Mrs. McElroy and I were talking she recalled for me some of her memories of the "old days" in Canyon. One of her most poignant memories is of the school house because "it was painted, had glass panel doors and was equipped with a bell." She said it was composed of three rooms. She also vividly remembers attending church and Sunday School in the court house which is now the Home Canyon building.

Among Mrs. Taylor's many memories are the still vivid days when she and her family lived in a dugout beside a creek and the times they spent washing clothes at a nearby spring.

Don't say it won't happen to you. That's what Virginia Raillard who lives at 2404 9th Ave. said, and, lo and behold, it up and happened.

That is, Virginia was called by a monitor of a quiz program and had the thrill of being the lucky winner of a bundle of prizes.

It all happened like this. About 1:15 p. m. one day last week, Larry Filkins of KGNC's Telecast, a quiz program for housewives, called Virginia and asked her this question, "What is the first name of the famous night club owner, Toots Shor?" Virginia was stumped, but after a hint from Larry that the name was also one of an English playwright's first name, she took a wild guess and surprises of surprises she was right.

The first name of Toots Shor is Bernard, one of the first names of George Bernard Shaw. "I don't know why I chose that name," says Virginia. "It just came to me."

At any rate, that stab in the dark proved lucky because she was awarded with a watch, a dozen pairs of nylons, a box of Apex watch bands, bathroom scales, a pen and pencil set, a box of assorted costume jewelry, a large bottle of "Intoxication" perfume, two toys for her children, one of which is a Dick Tracy arm radio, a generous supply of Borax and a year's supply of batteries.

Was Virginia surprised? Yes, indeed. "Why I was never so surprised in all my life," she says. She said she had often kidded about the quiz programs, answering the questions at home and saying that if she were in New York or some other big city she would answer a quiz question and do such and such but never thought she would actually be a winner.

Other people were also excited. Two minutes after Larry Filkins and Virginia hung their phones up, people started a series of questions and congratulations that lasted all afternoon.

WHAT DID THEY DO WITH THE LAMPS?—Lamp-shade-like straws for summer are going to be "the thing," if these chapeaux are straws in fashion's spring breeze. Shown recently in New York City, they are, from left: Yellow straw with small bow; white straw with draped, printed silk trim; untrimmed beige straw.

Now see there. It does happen, and it could happen . . . to you.

"Got a bunch of lawyers in Mobeetie. When court's in session, people come in for a real to-do."

The above excerpt is from The Far Journey, one of Loula Grace Erdman's latest books for which she will be honored by the National League of American Pen Women on April 7.

Miss Erdman will be honored for her literary achievement at the traditional "Authors' Breakfast" at the Sheraton-Park Hotel in Washington, D. C., along with authors Grover Whalen, for Mrs. New Yorker, Catherine Marshall, for A Man Called Peter, and Margaret Culkin Banning, for The Dowry.

Following the notation, Miss Erdman will fly home for the Writers' Round-Up which she directs.

She got an early start to her traveling a week ago last Friday by going to New York to meet her niece, Mollie Loula Wilson, who will spend her spring vacation there. Her niece is a student at Colorado College.

But back to Miss Erdman's book. The Far Journey which first appeared on the book store shelves in 1955 tells the story of the early homesteaders through the story of a young girl—her arrival in Texas, her love story, experiences and personal growth as a homesteader.

Mrs. Lee Foster, who has reviewed the book about nine times says, "The book has been accepted very well by all the clubs for which I have reviewed it, especially at a recent review for a group in Wheeler where about six women were able to recall stories of their parents settling here in the period in which The Far Journey was written."

Miss Erdman's reference to the setting of pioneer days has produced other books whose titles have become familiar among young and old. Such as Edge of Time, The Wind Blows Free and Three At The Wedding. Her first novel, The Years of The Locust, won the Dodd, Mead-Redbook $10,000 prize in 1947 and The Wind Blows Free won the Dodd, Mead-American Girl Prize competition.

What Next?

I heard the other day about an enterprising young girl who must have some secret about managing boys and keeping them charmed. It seems she manages, some way or the other, to go steady with two boys at the same time, proudly wearing both rings and a bracelet.

I bet the other girls are wondering what is her big secret. (Maybe so are two young gentlemen.)

In the March issue of Ladies Home Journal is Elinor Goulding Smith's book, The Absolutely Complete Book of Perfect Housekeeping. Have you read it? If you haven't, do. It's worth many a laugh.

Mrs. Smith explains in her delightful light humor the "perfect" way to keep house and the "easy" way to solve all your little household frustrations.

She says:

"There are several small obstacles to be overcome in being a successful housewife. They are—and we might as well face them bravely at the start—hunger, diet, rubbish, breakage and wreckage, a tendency of things to get in the wrong places and a tendency of the right places to get filled up with the wrong things, the obstinacy of machinery, dust, chicken pox, runs in stockings, Howdy Doody, ash trays, nasty tempers, alarm clocks, weeds, door-to-door salesmen, finger paints, clutter, litter, butter, batter, clatter, lint, fuzz, crumbs, cat hairs, garbage, leaks, fuses, cracks, creaks, chips, scratches, mold, scattering, shattering and spattering, husbands and small children. Now. When you look at it all squarely and honestly, don't you feel bitter? I mean better?"

And Elinor Smith goes on and on in that manner explaining how to run, I mean ruin, (excuse me Elinor) the household, how to prepare meals in detail from planning, shopping, the preparation proper to serving food, how to use the automaniacal clothes washer and she explains the perils of ironing. What's more she tells the housewives all about vacuum cleaning, bureau drawers, raising a child (that's the child from one to forty), interior decorating, home repairs and finishes in grand style by giving vital information on how to choose a husband.

Magazine Outlines Wildlife Positions

AUSTIN—How demands for wildlife and fisheries management personnel are creating vast opportunities for trained young men is explained in the current issue of Texas Game and Fish Magazine by Dr. W. B. Davis, chief of the Department of Wildlife Management at Texas A & M College.

"Wildlife is big business in Texas as it is elsewhere in the nation," he wrote. "And opportunities for conservation-minded young men are expanding and will continue to do so as the American public comes to realize more and more the value of managing its vast natural resources for both recreational and economic purposes."

Slanting his treatment directly to any budding talent, Dr. Davis wrote: "If you are a young man who likes the out-of-doors, who is not afraid to work hard, who has a keen interest in wildlife, and who is endowed with the ability to work with people, opportunity awaits you in the field of wildlife and the fisheries science."

Howard D. Dodgen, executive secretary for the Texas Game and Fish Commission, qualified Dr. Davis' appeal by saying there is an actual shortage of qualified personnel for specialized assignments on the Commission staff.

"This is a highly complex field and it calls for handling by only those scholastically qualified," he said. Our own routine projects of today, as we compete with assorted handicaps imposed by increasing hunting and fishing pressure in the face of shrinking habitat, points up the fact that we are merely in the formative phases of scientifically conducted game and fish management."

Dr. Davis specifically listed the tasks for a wildlife research man: "He may be called upon to work out the life cycle of any of the animal species involved in natural relationships, even a non-game species, so that its most vulnerable phases may be learned and its controls made easier.

"For example, he may be asked to determine to what extent rodents compete with small game for food, or the importance of minnows as food for game fishes. Consequently, the research man must have a profound knowledge of basic sciences, which is usually achieved only by graduate work leading to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

"This man is comparable to the research doctor in the medical field who may be trying to discover a means of curing cancer. Both must be highly trained in the basic sciences of chemistry, physics, mathematics and biology."

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

The other day we stopped at a traffic light behind a husband and wife . . . At least, we supposed they were married, because they were sitting well apart in the front seat of the automobile . . .

Then suddenly, he looked over at her as though she were something special, and she smiled at him and they began to talk with animation . . .

So then we wondered . . . Are they husband and wife?

She wasn't telling him how to drive . . . He wasn't yawning when she talked . . .

She was neatly dressed, her hair looked pretty, she wore no pin curlers . . . He wasn't yakking at her as though he wished he were somewhere else . . .

They just seemed two congenial people, friendly but not flirtatious.

Since then, we've watched other couples in automobiles at traffic lights. It makes us wonder what that couple has remembered to do for each other that so many married couples seem to forget.

Two persons who once cared enough for each other to think they'd like to spend the rest of their lives together must have a great deal to share. Where do they lose the way? Does he forget to tell her she looks pretty in her new dress? Does he forget she needs a new dress from time to time? Has she forgotten how to laugh at his jokes? Is she carrying her share of the load?

If husbands and wives could see themselves as the casual stranger does, they might know more about themselves as a couple. If we could "wish upon a star," we'd not make it a wish for a streamlined automobile but for the man sitting beside us at the steering wheel to look at us from time to time as though we were a friend, not just a wife!

Daniel Annouces for Governor In Radio and Television Speech

Following is the full text of Sen. Price Daniel's speech Monday night.

MY FELLOW TEXANS: Two weeks ago tonight, I came to you, the people of Texas, to ask your advice as to whether I should become a candidate for Governor.

I told you then that I was personally ready and willing to make the fight. In fact, I made it clear that I had rather serve as Governor of my native State than to hold any other office in the land.

However, I left the final decision in your hands. You employed me to serve in the Senate, and I did not feel free to seek a change while serving in this employment without your wholehearted approval.

In a tremendous outpouring of letters, postcards and telegrams, you have given your approval in no uncertain terms. Accordingly, I hereby announce my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Texas.

With humility and heartfelt appreciation, I thank every one of you who participated in this decision. Especially do I appreciate those of you who have given me your prayers as well as your advice. With this type of help, our crusade for progress and good government is sure to be successful.

In accordance with my speech and platform of March 12, I pledge that with your continued help I will wage an active and vigorous campaign. It will be a positive campaign for the constructive program so necessary for the future of our State.

From your messages it is clear that the people of Texas want a candidate who will fight for honesty and integrity in Austin, and a candidate who will fight to the finish against further Federal encroachments upon the rights of our State and our people. That is what I have pledged to do, and Price Daniel renews that pledge to you tonight.

Another thing so apparent from your letters is the fact that you are tired of the bitterness, hatred and name-calling that have characterized some of our recent campaigns. Many of you have mentioned with approval my pledge that I would not deal in personalities — that I would run on my own merits and my own positive program.

Texas needs clean politics as much as it needs clean government. I promise you to keep my part of the campaign on a high level — worthy of the dignity which should go with the office of Governor of Texas.

We need in Texas more unity, more harmony — more pulling together for the growth and development of our beloved State. With all my heart, I believe that I can furnish you with that type of leadership, and that I can do it with the fairness, integrity and dignity to which every Texan is entitled from his Governor. I hold no bitterness, malice or hatred against anyone. I am not out to punish anyone except those who have violated our laws and their public trust.

We must rid from public service all who have been unfaithful to their trust, and that I will help accomplish with prompt and vigorous action.

And so, my friends, in your own letters and other messages you have mentioned and approved the substance of the campaign which I shall wage for Governor of Texas, especially these points:

1. Honesty and integrity in the halls of government and in the political campaign.

2. Restoration of unity and good will among our people.

3. Protection of the rights of our State and our people against further Federal encroachments. This includes an all-out fight against domination by certain national pressure groups which will try to capture the Governor's office this year for the Candidate of their choice. It shall be my chief aim to place the government of Texas in the hands of the people of Texas, and to let you know regularly what is going on, so that you may help make the decisions so vital to a government which is truly of, by, and for the people.

On March 12 I outlined to you a specific 12-point program which includes: (1) simple honesty and moral integrity in the halls of government; (2) better law enforcement and more thorough investigation of alleged official misconduct in the past and in the future, including a State Law Enforcement Commission composed of one county grand juror from each of the eleven Supreme Judicial Districts of the State. This will remove these investigations from politics and put the spotlight of truth on official conduct in Austin.

It was with such power as this through a Senate committee that I conducted the recent nation-wide investigation of the narcotics traffic. It was through a state-wide crime conference that, as Attorney General of Texas, I was able to fight crime, corruption, and juvenile delinquency, and I would continue and enlarge that fight as Governor.

(3) Legislative reforms, including a strict lobby registration law; (4) improvements in our public schools, including new school construction and increased salaries for our teachers. A State as wealthy as ours should have the finest public school system in the United States, and I shall work in that direction, protecting always local self-government with respect to our school districts and their many varied problems; (5) tightening up on our narcotics laws; (6) improvement of our highways and highway safety; (7) more adequate pensions for our aged citizens and improvement of our hospital programs; (8) attraction of new industries to use our natural resources here at home; (9) a long-range water conservation program for the entire State; (10) full support of the future welfare of farmers and ranchers in Texas; (11) additional improvements in our insurance laws and strict regulation of all corporations endowed with the public interest; and (12) a balanced budget for the State government, but with absolute opposition to any general sales tax or State income tax.

I was pleased that so many of your messages specifically referred to this program with approval. As one person wrote: "Yours is the only positive program which has been offered for honesty and improvement in our State government, and I shall support it wholeheartedly." I especially appreciate those of you who have expressed the faith that you could depend on Price Daniel to carry out this program. One of the letters which I treasure the most reads as follows:

> "I've tried to instill in my two small boys a concern over their government. After your speech, when my eleven year old boy asked, 'Dad, can we depend on him?' I replied, 'We certainly can, Son'!"

You may be sure that I shall do my best never to disappoint that father and the many other men and women of Texas who believe that they can depend on Price Daniel for honesty, progress and good government in Texas.

Now, let me thank each of you again who wrote, wired, or called me in response to my speech of March 12. You will hear from me in due time, but because of the vast number of messages it may be several weeks before they can be answered by the small staff of personally-employed people who will do the job. I want to express my appreciation also on behalf of my wife and four children. I appreciate the many kind things which you have written about my family.

On the other hand, there were a few letters which were uncomplimentary and threatening in nature. One letter urged me not to run for Governor because of the threat that my family would be embarrassed by the bitter political propaganda which would be thrown against me in an effort to defeat me in this campaign. Another said that I would be persecuted from the minute that I announced for Governor. My answer to that is — begin your propaganda and your persecution now, because tonight I have announced for Governor of Texas. I have no fears either for myself or my family that anyone in a political campaign will be able to destroy the character and reputation which I have labored 45 years to build. In my opinion, the people of Texas will repudiate those who engage in such tactics instead of running on their own merits and their own platform.

It was a great disappointment to a few of the opposition that I left the decision as to my candidacy in the hands of the people, because some had already charged that I had been selected by special interests or political kingmakers or that I was a party to some political "trade" or "deal." Some wanted to be in the position of criticizing me for not resigning this office before running for Governor. They are disappointed, because they have been disarmed. I left the decision on all of these matters up to you, and your response was so overwhelming that it left no doubt in my mind as to the course I should follow.

Just as I have made no deals or trades concerning my candidacy for Governor, I have no understanding, deal or trade, concerning my successor in the Senate. As stated earlier this year, I will resign from the Senate after being nominated for the office of Governor, and I will time my resignation so that the people will have the freest possible choice of my successor before I take office as Governor. I would not think of appointing my own successor, and neither would he be appointed or hand-picked by anyone else, because appointments even for temporary vacancies are not authorized when Congress is in adjournment. Although I shall not attempt to fix any definite time this far in advance, you may be sure that I shall handle the matter so that you, the people of Texas, will decide at the ballot box who shall succeed me in the Senate.

Letters, postcards and telegrams are still coming at the rate of nearly a thousand per day. We have thus far counted 29,352 who have approved my candidacy and offered their support, while only 429 have written their opposition. In 267 of these letters there were campaign contributions, mostly in small amounts, many one dollar bills and small checks, totaling $5,041.50 — enough, my friends, to pay for this my second television and radio broadcast. Others wrote that they would contribute if I made a definite announcement. I thank all of you and hope that my entire campaign can be financed without solicitation but from those of you who will continue to volunteer your contributions in this manner. Whether you can afford to contribute or not, I want to continue to hear from all who are willing to speak to your friends or to work in any manner in my behalf. That is more important than anything else, especially during the next sixty days when I must remain in Washington most of the time to finish pending legislation. After that, in June and July I shall conduct a hard-hitting but high level campaign in every section of the State. If you will continue to enlist your friends and work for me while I am working for you here in Washington, I pledge you to do my part in the final sixty days to win a resounding victory which will bring to our State a new era of integrity, progress, and good government.

Let me assure you again that I consider the office of Governor of Texas as the greatest honor that can be bestowed upon any man, and when elected, I will regard it as a sacred trust to be used for the good of all of our people and the everlasting glory of our great State.

Dr. Angie Debo Gives Indian Talk

"The Plight of the American Indian" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Angie Debo, a leading American Indian authority, at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Debo, along with other Indian affairs authorities are working for revision of the federal program for Indians. She is speaking here in connection with the mission study made during the winter by many church women in Canyon.

A former member of the faculty of Oklahoma A&M, Dr. Debo has written several books on pioneer days and Indians. When she retired from the college in 1953, she expected to devote all her time to writing, but she felt she could help the Indian by speaking.

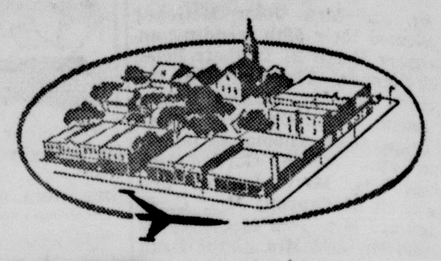

In addition to the general meeting Tuesday there will be discussion groups Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 10 a. m. in the Presbyterian church. The public is invited to attend all the meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atkins and Richard of Big Spring, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Jenkins and sons, Larry and Randy, of Andarko, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Lowe of Gruver were weekend guests in the G. B. Combs home. Mrs. Jenkins will be remembered as Joanne Atkins, granddaughter of Mrs. Combs.

Mrs. Myrtle Mathis of Seattle, Wash., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Marvel Kirbie.

Though 1900 years intervene, the Man of Galilee still stands in our midst and says, "This do in remembrance of me." This outward and visible sign of inward and spiritual grace separates man from the world and commemorates the death of Our Lord. He said, "Do it in remembrance of me."

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

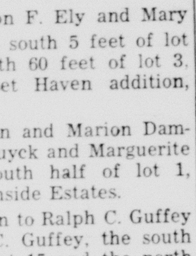

Abraham Lincoln once said, "You can fool part of the people all the time, all the people part of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time.

And as reports keep coming in, it appears the truth of this statement is being proved in the grocery business.

* * *

A shopping trend seems to have stopped, with a new one appearing to be in the making.

C. W. Harder

That new trend appears to be that people are once again trading independent.

Two sets of figures are quite interesting.

In 1955, for the third straight year, chain grocery stores failed to show any gain in percentage of total food sales, holding at 36%, only 2% above 1933.

Yet food chain store profits dropped in one year from 1954 to 1955 by almost 25% so that in 1955 chain store profits averaged less than 1%.

* * *

It appears harder and harder to fool the public. Consumers are now becoming aware of the fact that quality for quality, grade for grade, independent operators usually can sell for less than chains.

* * *

Chains have been trying to meet their problem by pushing their own brands, manufactured by their own subsidiaries.

However, with distribution of their brands limited to their own stores, chains are finding that they cannot achieve the volume on them to compete with widely distributed national and regional brands.

* * *

At same time, consumers are showing themselves more inclined to favor the well known national and regional brands. In order to change this public preference, the chains have attempted to cut the price on their private brands, thus further aggravating their profit situation.

* * *

Presumably, in time stockholders will get curious.

* * *

Public also seems to be swinging to point of view that the home owned, independent business offers greater security to the community.

* * *

For example, recent study shows that while only 55% of the nation's families are home owners, 92% of the independent grocers own their own homes.

* * *

In addition, every sign at present seems to indicate the housewife is rebelling over having family food prices dictated by distant managements.

She is doing something about it, turning more and more to the independent grocer to get known brands at lower prices. Today's homemaker is becoming more resistant to ballyhoo.

* * *

In fact, it is now reported by some food processors that some chain buyers are stating quite openly that they cannot afford to handle goods unless they do get price concessions over the independents. Thus, vigilance in the enforcement of the anti trust laws will keep this "trade independent" trend growing.

* * *

The public is once again recognizing the independent merchant is not only a community pillar, but the most efficient distributor of goods.

Pollution Cases Head List of Fines Reported to Game and Fish Commission

AUSTIN—Twenty-six major pollution cases marked the monthly arrest report released by E. M. Sprott, director of law enforcement for the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

Five of the defendants paid fines of $200 each plus costs. The other 21 were assessed $100 fines and costs. Total revenue from fines for pollution was $3100 for the month.

Sprott said several of the charges were filed for pollution in the Gulf Coast area. A few involved contamination of streams or lakes by salt water flowing from oil well installations.

He estimated that the monthly total of cases filed and fines collected represents a new monthly high for the Commission.

Sprott pointed out that the impressive number of cases during the month does not mean "any particular epidemic of pollution."

The monthly arrest report reflected some sad experiences from the recent general hunting season. A man from China, in southeast Texas, was observed working over a concentration of wild geese from his car. The charges read like this: "Over limit of geese, $100; shooting geese from automobile, $100; shooting geese with an unplugged gun, $50." The costs approximated another $100, running the total for the feathered jackpot to just under $500.

Three men from Canadian in the Panhandle likewise would like to recall a pot shot they took when they crawled up on a small tank for a quick killing of what they thought were snow geese. The big birds were whistling swans which are protected by law. The court acknowledged the mistake and levied minimum individual fines of $10 each plus costs.

Some of the folks gunned their way into trouble after the legal shooting period closed. The cases included fines for shooting waterfowl, doves, and deer out of season.

Sprott noted the seasonal increase in fishing law violations. Charges included taking fish by hand, or grappling; too many hooks on a trotline; over the limit on catfish; netting catfish.

He urged fishermen to study their regulations since laws governing fishing limits and equipment restrictions vary. He said the safest way when in doubt is to contact the local game warden.

Mrs. Bauer Hostess To Jowell H. D. Club

The Jowell Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. Irvin Bauer Wednesday. A contest to see who could drop the most clothes pins in a milk bottle was the opening exercise.

Mrs. T. J. Bonds was in charge of the program, "Training in the Home." Mrs. Earl Davis discussed Bible reading. A round-table was held on keeping alive family customs and traditions.

During the business session plans were made for a Stanley party in the near future. Plans were made for members to help at the grocery stores to sell Gold Medal products. A percentage of these sales will be given to the council.

Subjects were discussed that would be desirable for study in next year's programs. Bedrooms, storage, and methods of freezing were selected.

Refreshments of chocolate cake, fruit salad, coffee and cocoa were served to Mrs. Jimmy Dietz, Mrs. J. W. Spencer, Mrs. Quinton Gill, Mrs. T. J. Bonds, Mrs. Les Raymond, Mrs. F. E. Culp, Mrs. Earl Davis and the hostess.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ray McDonald on April 4 at 2 p. m.

Sunny Hill Club Meets With Culp

The Sunny Hill Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Myra Nell Culp March 22. After a short business meeting, the group enjoyed a program on Finland.

Refreshments were served to Shirley Williams, Mary Neal Henry, Gene Robinson, Maureen Allison, Ester Quarnstrom, Mary Jane Miller, Leona Henry and the hostess.

Famous bulletin from Mobilgas Economy Run

FORD WINS IN ECONOMY TOO!

V-8 WINS CLASS A

In this year's Economy Run a new Ford V-8, with Fordomatic, was the official victor over every car in its field, with a winning average of 47.7643 ton-miles per gallon. This means that the sturdier, heavier Ford carried more weight, with greater gas economy per pound, than any car in its field.

This latest Ford victory was scored over a rough and rigorous 1,468.8-mile route running from Los Angeles to Colorado Springs. Through the heat of Death Valley and over chilling mountain heights . . . through gas-eating city traffic and over the straight-line open road . . . Ford proved anew its traditional reputation for economical performance.

The winning Ford was a regular-production model taken right from the assembly line. It was no different than thousands of '56 Fords you see on the road and in dealer's showrooms. This proves that Ford, the Performance, Style and Safety leader, leads in Economy, too! That adds up to four big reasons why the '56 Ford is worth more when you buy it, while you drive it, and when you sell it, too!

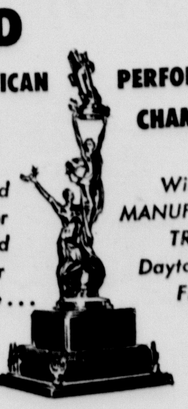

The "ton-mile" formula is used by contest officials to insure equal chance for all cars in each class, regardless of size or weight. Ton-miles per gallon equals the car weight (including passengers) in tons, multiplied by the number of miles traveled, divided by number of gallons of gasoline consumed.

Lemon-Flavored Dessert Is Food Fit for Angels or Mortals

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

AS delicate in texture and hue as springtime itself, this beautiful coconut angel roll with lemon filling will make the ideal dessert for a Sunday dinner.

Coconut Lemon Angel Roll (8-10 servings)

Three quarter cup sifted cake flour, 1 cup sifted granulated sugar, 1 cup egg whites (8 to 10), ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon almond extract, lemon filling, 1½ cups shredded coconut.

Sift flour once. Measure. Add ⅔ cup of the sugar, and sift together four times.

Place egg whites in large mixing bowl add salt, cream of tartar, and flavorings. Beat with flat wire whip or egg beater until egg whites are stiff enough to hold up in soft peaks, but are still moist and glossy

Add remaining ⅓ cup of the sugar in three additions, sprinkling 2 tablespoons at a time over egg whites and beating 25 strokes or turns each time.

Add flour-sugar mixture in two additions, sifting it over the egg whites. Fold in each addition with flat wire whip or large spoon, turning bowl gradually

Use 15 complete fold-over strokes each time. After last addition, use 10 to 20 extra strokes.

Turn into a 15½"x10½"x1" pan which has been lined on bottom with paper. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until cake springs back when pressed lightly with fingers.

Cool 10 minutes. Then turn out on cloth covered with powdered sugar, remove paper and trim off edges. Roll up, rolling cloth in cake.

Cool thoroughly (at least one hour). When cool, unroll, remove cloth, and spread with lemon filling, reserving about ⅓ cup for top of roll.

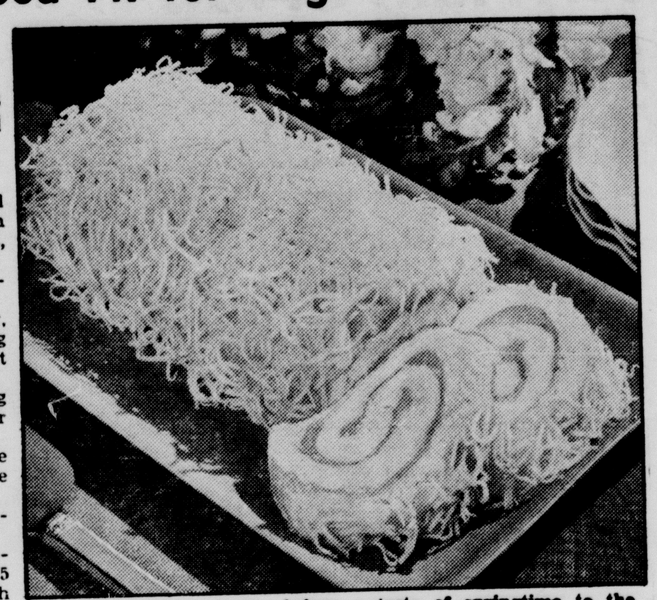

Roll up again. Spread top of roll with remaining filling and sprinkle with the coconut. Chill thoroughly. Then slice and serve.

Lemon Filling

Combine ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt and 4 tablespoons sugar in top of double boiler. Bring to boil over direct heat, then place over boiling water.

Mix ¼ cup water and 4 tablespoons flour, blending to smooth paste, and add gradually to hot mixture. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly.

Beat 1 egg yolk with 2 tablespoons sugar. Add slowly to lemon mixture and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1 teaspoon butter or margarine. Cool 10 minutes before spreading on cake.

Fragrant, delicate lemon brings a taste of springtime to the palate when you sample the delightful confection pictured above.

Need Moisture For Range Seed

COLLEGE STATION—Presently there is an estimated 10 to 12 million acres of abandoned cropland and an additional several million acres of denuded or barren rangeland in Texas.

Reseeding with adapted grasses is one method which may be used to bring at least a part of this land back into profitable forage production, says A. H. Walker, extension range specialist, provided moisture conditions are favorable.

In the case of the abandoned cropland, Walker suggests reseeding the best land first. A soil test is a logical starting point. He points out that if reseeding is to be a success, the operation must be carried out in the same thorough manner as the seeding of any other crop.

Use the best soil, adapted seed, methods and equipment available.

The land should be prepared by disking and harrowing. The grass should be drilled or seeded in rows and culipacker or roller used to firm the soil. Plant only adapted grasses and cover the seed from a fourth to three-fourths of an inch deep.

Most grasses should be planted in the winter or early spring before the rainy season. Mowing the first year will aid in controlling weeds and spraying with chemicals can be used for this job the second year. If the grass is to become established, controlled grazing and good management are musts, says Walker.

On the barren or denuded rangelands, Walker says if 15 per cent of the better grasses are left, deferred grazing may do the job quicker and a lot cheaper than reseeding.

Can some land preparation be made and is the area to be reseeded fenced to protect the seedlings? It will need different management, points out Walker.

Fairly good results from seeding in pits have been obtained in the Edwards Plateau, Rolling Plains and Trans-Pecos areas while seeding following root plowing in the Rio Grande Plains has given similar results.

Scattering seed hay where plant litter is absent has given fair results in some areas but it's expensive. Scattering seed under protecting brush or on rocky areas usually gives poor results.

The chances of success by any method depends upon the moisture supply and the management practices used while the grass seedlings are becoming established, says Walker.

TOUGH LUCK

A picture was being shown of a girl taking off her clothes at the edge of a river, before plunging into the water. In front of her ran a railway line, and just as the girl was removing her last garment a train came along, obscuring the view.

When the train had passed, the girl was swimming vigorously. At this point a man muttered, "Damn."

"I beg your pardon," said his neighbor, "did you say something?"

"Yes," said the other, "I've been to see this picture five times this week, and that darned train's on time every night."

TIT FOR TAT

Two women, who had once been neighbors, met on the street, not having seen each other for seven years.

"My," said one, "I would hardly have known you, you look so much older."

"I wouldn't have recognized you either," said the other, "except for your hat and dress."

Epitaph we'd love to carve for a speed-happy nitwit in a souped-up jaloppy: "Dig that crazy driver."

STUMPED THE DOCTOR

The famous psychologist had just delivered a most interesting lecture, and was now conducting a question session.

A timid little man down front held up his hand, and was recognized.

"Doctor," he said most respectfully, "did I understand you to say that a good poker player could successfully handle any sort of executive job?"

"That's exactly what I said," was the confident reply.

"Tell me, Doctor," asked the little man, "what would a good poker player want with a job?"
